

Women Who Lead

Re-evaluating career decisions? Starting new projects or businesses? Stepping up to a new level of leadership? Women who Lead will equip you with new insights and practical skills to sharpen your professional practice as a leader. Designed by Natalie Turner, CEO of The Entheo Network and Director of Women who Lead, the Programme is a highly interactive, peer to peer learning space which offers on-going professional development for senior women in positions of leadership in small businesses, the corporate world or public sector.

The intent of Women who Lead is to create time and space for women to engage deeply and creatively around issues relevant to them, both professional and personal. The goal is that the experience will be transformative in nature both for the individual and the group. My belief is that to lead with power and influence, not to mention a deep sense of integrity and authenticity, we need to have a strong sense of self, be able to tune into our bodies and learn how to listen to and trust our intuition.

Women who Lead is designed so that you can work on current or new project ideas and/or leadership challenges. As well as drawing from the collective intelligence of other participants, you will make new connections and build strong relationships that will be of benefit to your personal and professional lives. The two day programme is designed around a fusion of facilitated conversations, creative interaction around the theories of leadership, change and innovation, building practices for emotional and personal wellbeing and time for formal and informal networking.

Hosted at The Banyan Tree: www.banyantree.com/en/ap-indonesia-ungasan-bali/banyan-tree-spa/overview, a brand committed to health, nourishment and wellness, we have purposefully designed the retreat to cultivate time for reflection, pampering and enlivening the senses so that you can breathe in and experience the taste and beauty of the southernmost tip of Bali.
